> PRESIDENT ELLIOTT FAVORS ARBITRATION Of the Two Questions Now In Dispute

With the Clerks,

New York, June 21 .- Howard Elliott president of the New York, New Haven and Hartford Railroad Company in a statement tonight dealing with the demands of the freight clerks of the road, declared that "there are two questions in dispute now with the clerks" and "that in these two partic-ular cases it (the company) is willing to arbitrate the questions to be discussed". The two cases cited in-volve the right of the company o'd designate and classify its supervising officers", according to a statement.

Mr. Elliott declared that until this orning he thought success had been t with in the effort to harmonize differences between the road and the clerks. He said "The compan" has shown every desire to bring abou ing a curve. Timmons and Williams, riding on a freight train which had come to a halt, had gotten off the train and were walking along the track duty to make and enforce reasonble rules of discipline and the duty of selecting, retaining and promoting men to do the work of the company. The president asserted that "the comny has suggested that all the facts laid before any impartial body for full consideration" and that if, in the face of this, the clerks strike the com-pany will have to fill the places of those who leave and continue to do business "as well as it can under the changed conditions,"

(Special to The Bulletin)

Willimantic, June 21.—The second ay of Old School and Home Week brought weather conditions which promised a fine week, and caused re-newed activity in all line preparing for the delight and comfort of Willifor the delight and comfort of Willimantic guests. The mass meeting of Sunday, when practically every minister of the gospel met on a common platform at a gathering unique in the history of the town and city, presided over by the opposing candidates of the leading parties in the last city election, and filling the vast state armory to overflowing, started the week off with a rush.

Monday's Events.

Monday's chief events were the op-ening of the industrial exhibit in the town hall, the Normal school classday exercises and the graduating exer-cises of St. Marys parcholal school. The long strings of lights on Main street were thrown on for the first time Monday evening, making a great white way of the thoroughfure. There was the first exhibition of the Krause Greater Shows, assigned the space on Windham 1-1d and run in confunc-tion with the general committee of the week's celebration.

The Industrial Exhibit.

The industrial exhibit fills the town hall, and is well worth seeing representing, as it does, the built of Willimantic industry, the products of which go to the farthermest corners of the globe.

Splendid Showing by Thread Company Splendid Showing by Thread Company.

Along the whole center space is arranged the big exhibit of the American Thread plant, showing their immense variety of products arranged so as to bring out both the variety in the kind of threads, and the quality and the numerous ways in which they are prepared for the trade. Thread for embroidery, and for shoes, put up on wooden spools and tubes, and on paper cones, of all kinds and descriptions, and in all conceivable colors, until one wonders how even so large a plant as this can systematize arge a plant as this can systematize

In regard to the colors, for instance, thirty-five girls have been kept busy all the past winter simply making up sample-books for the various trades, showing the kinds and colors of the product of this immense concern, and there remains no reason for doubt as to why Willimantle is called "The to why willing Thread City."

All Sorts of Handles

Beginning at the left of the entrance, there comes the exhibit of the J. M. Tatem Handle Company, with handles all sorts and descriptions carfeully fashioned fro mash and hickory, and effectively arranged. Following around to the left comes the Vanderman Foundry company, with vices and other products of their works, and making a specialty of the massive tool chests which they put

The S. C. S. Box Company comes next, with an exhibit of their manu-facture, and in the corner space is an attractive display from Hillhouse and Taylor, including a tile fireplace and handsome wood mantel and other specimens of their work.

Silk and Velvets, Ribbons On the opposite side, following around the room, is a display of silks from the looms of the Windham Silk Company, which is a beautiful sight. One does not know how many and variegated are the products of the manufacturing industries of Williamitic until he has had a glimpse of some of eh more important, as shown in this

The Rossi Velvet Company exhibits some of their product, in ribbon, cloth and a couple of velvet hats, with fifty dollars or more in value represented in one of the latter.

Other Displays. Then comes the Holland Manufacturing Company with a case attract-ively setting forth the merits of their manufactured product, and next is that of the Chaffee Manufacturing Company, featuring fish-lines and other products of their skill. The trance, is taken by the exhibit of the corner space at this end, near the entrance, is taken by the exhibit of the worth seeing, although not quite com-pleted Monday morning. Other industries will be represented, and several inquiries for space were made Monday, All was can will be accomodated and by Thursday prob-ably all available space will be filled.
